

2022 Congressionally Designated Spending Dollars For Northern Virginia

U.S. Senators Mark R. Warner and Tim Kaine

- Following Warner and Kaine’s joint request, $5,100,000 is headed to Prince William County to support the expansion of Northern Virginia Community College’s Data Center Operations degree and certificate programs to the Woodbridge campus. The program prepares students to be successful facility technicians and currently has 75 students, 24 of whom have already been hired into the data center industry. The funding complements Kaine’s advocacy for two pieces of his legislation, the Assisting Community Colleges in Educating Skilled Students \(ACCESS\) to Careers Act, which would provide resources to states and community colleges to partner with industries to address the evolving demands of the labor market, and his Jumpstart Our Businesses By Supporting Students \(JOBS\) Act, which would help make high-quality, shorter-term education and training programs eligible for federal Pell Grants.
- Following Warner and Kaine’s joint request, $3,588,000 is headed to Loudoun County for a three-year, phased implementation of additional body-worn camera units, associated licenses, training, network infrastructure, data storage, and personnel for the Loudoun County Sheriff’s Office.
- Following Warner and Kaine’s joint request, $2,000,000 is headed to Fairfax County to support the Merrifield Crisis Response Center, which operates as an assessment site where law-enforcement officers can transfer custody of non-violent offenders who may need mental health, substance use, or developmental disability services to a Crisis Intervention Team-trained officer or deputy assigned there, instead of taking the individuals to jail.
- Following Warner’s request, $1,830,000 is headed to Prince William County to support George Mason University’s Center for Literacy’s state-wide project to build literacy skills in K-12 students with a scalable, comprehensive hybrid program for teachers, students, and their families.
- Following Warner and Kaine’s joint request, $1,700,000 is headed to Fairfax County to enable the development of Fair Ridge at West Ox—an affordable housing community that provides supportive services for individuals suffering from homelessness or at severe risk of homelessness.
- Following Kaine’s request, $1,483,000 is headed to Prince William County to fund a project by George Mason University to help train law enforcement officers and departments in productive handling of incidents involving individuals with mental health disorders, in concert with local communities and professional mental health crisis intervention managers.

- Following Kaine's request, $1,030,000 is headed to Fairfax County to boost homeownership through down payment and closing assistance administered by the First Time Homebuyers Program.
- Following Warner and Kaine's joint request, $1,000,000 is headed to Fairfax County to purchase equipment and expand Capital Bikeshare facilities for underserved areas.
- Following Kaine's request, $742,000 is headed to Fairfax County for the Opportunities, Alternatives, and Resources Program's Collaborative Diversion for Equitable Justice Outcomes. Specifically, the funding will help support a diversion program for adult community members who have been engaged with the criminal justice system.
- Following Warner and Kaine's joint request, $500,000 is headed to the Loudoun County for the Loudoun View Senior Living Project, which will use the funds to connect water and wastewater services for an affordable housing development that will provide 98 affordable apartments for seniors.
- Following Warner and Kaine's joint request, $447,000 is headed to the City of Manassas Park to replace legacy access camera systems throughout four Manassas Park City buildings and install security and surveillance cameras at nine significant high-traffic intersections in the City.
- Following Kaine's request, $400,000 is headed to Fairfax County to help launch a new skills development center to help prepare minority and low-income individuals that have been disproportionately impacted by the pandemic for in-demand careers. The center will link immediate pandemic economic and community recovery efforts with long-term plans to grow employment opportunities for minority and low-income communities in Fairfax County.
